11th November 2021

The Independent Commission Against Corruption is conducting an online survey on perceptions and experiences of potential corruption in South Australian public administration.

The Commission is interested in hearing from all local government employees and elected members.

The survey is now live. It is administered by an independent social and market research company and is anonymous.

It would be good to get a strong response from local government, and all local government public officers including full-time, part-time and casual staff, and elected members are encouraged to participate.

You can access the survey at this link: <https://surveyresearch.com.au/n/j0KSKm6>

Please follow the link to have your say on potential corruption in public administration.
